MESSAGE FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Alternative Energy Promotion Centre (AEPCC), established on November 3, 1996 (18 Kartik 2053 B.S.), is the focal agency of the Government of Nepal for promoting Renewable Energy Technologies (RETs) and Energy Efficiency (EE). Recognized nationally and internationally as a center of excellence, AEPCC has been entrusted by the government with the mission of alleviating energy poverty. Its goal is to provide sustainable and clean energy alternatives in Nepal, replacing conventional and imported fossil fuels.

AEPCC has been significantly successful in promoting renewable energy technologies and addressing energy poverty in Nepal. In the last two and a half decades, AEPCC has reached 15 million households, installing 85 MW in cumulative capacity of renewable energy projects and clean cooking solutions throughout the country. AEPCC initiatives have not only provided reliable and affordable energy to the households but also created job opportunities for 30,000 individuals through 500 private companies in the renewable energy sector. Furthermore, AEPCC has implemented eight Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) projects, aiding in reduction of deforestation and carbon emissions. The organization's efforts have led to the installation of 38,841.5 kW micro and mini hydro projects, 2,707 kWp of Solar and Solar/Wind mini-grid Systems, and support for 988,341 households with solar PV home systems for electricity. Additionally 1,584,074 households have been benefited from improved cook stoves, 449,338 by domestic biogas plants and 3,342 solar drinking water & irrigation projects, as well as 4,021 solar PV systems for remote healthcare, government offices and community schools. These initiatives exactly align with Nepal's constitutional mandate to reliable and affordable energy and contribute significantly to climate change mitigation, adaptation, and enterprise development in the region.

The program “Promotion of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energies Component 2 : Promotion of Solar Energy” an initiative supported by the German Development Cooperation through KFW Development Bank has achieved significant milestones in transforming Nepal's energy landscape. Through strategic partnerships and innovative approaches, the project has successfully implemented 90 Rural Solar Drinking Water Projects (RSDWP) with a cumulative capacity of 525 kWp, providing clean and reliable drinking water to communities across various provinces. Additionally, the project has strategically deployed 1,383 Institutional Solar PV System (ISPS) projects with 1 kWp to 2 kWp individual capacity, in educational, healthcare and government institutions. These initiatives, with a cumulative installed capacity of 1,877 kWp, have been able to illuminate classrooms, healthcare facilities, and administrative offices, fostering a sustainable environment for learning, medical facility and administrative services to the people.

The program's impact has been extended further through pioneering solar solutions, including the Gorkha Hospital and the Raskot Hospital Solar Projects, setting new benchmarks in the renewable energy landscape. These initiatives showcase the transformative potential of solar energy in ensuring critical healthcare services even in remote and challenging terrains.

As we celebrate these achievements, the project remains committed to its mission of promoting renewable energy and energy efficiency. With continued support and collaboration, the initiative aims to further innovation, empower communities, and create a sustainable future for Nepal. This remarkable progress stands as a testament to the power of strategic partnerships and sustainable energy solutions in driving positive change and fostering inclusive growth.

MESSAGE FROM KFW

KFW is very pleased to see that this important project has finally been brought to a successful completion. The project was financed by the German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) through KFW (EUR 5.7 million) with substantial counterpart funding from Government of Nepal (GoN) and the beneficiaries. The aim of the project was to promote high quality off-grid solar energy systems for the rural poor in remote parts of Nepal. This aim has clearly been achieved: we have been able to finance 90 Photovoltaic Pumping Systems (PVPS) for drinking water as well as almost 1,400 Institutional Solar Photovoltaic Systems (ISPS) on rural schools, health posts and local government buildings across the entire country. Moreover, four larger scale PVPS and two larger scale ISPS ('pilot projects') were supported from project funds. This is a very considerable achievement.

KFW would like to thank the Alternative Energy Promotion Centre (AEPC) as the Project-Executing Agency for the successful implementation of the project. The project shows that immediate and tangible benefits for the rural poor can be realized even with limited funds. The main challenge will now be to ensure the sustainable operation and maintenance of the financed PV systems. We trust that the local beneficiaries will take good care of the support they have received and operate the PV systems in a sustainable manner with lasting impact.

PROJECT TITLE

Promotion of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energies,
Component 2: Promotion of Solar Energy (NRREP)

EXECUTING AGENCY

Alternative Energy Promotion Centre (AEPCC)

PROJECT IMPLEMENTATION PERIOD

January 2020 to September 2023

OBJECTIVES

- » Increase the supply of solar electricity in remote areas of Nepal
- » Reduce CO<sub>2</sub> emissions through subsidized financing of RSDWP and Institutional Solar Photovoltaic Systems (ISPS)

ACHIEVEMENTS

- » Successfully installed and commissioned 1,383 Institutional Solar Photovoltaic Systems (ISPS)
- » Implemented 90 Rural Solar Drinking Water
- » Implemented 2 Large Scale ISPS and 4 Large Scale RSDWP
- » Capacity building measures for project staff, private sector and relevant stakeholders

IMPACT

- » Increased access to clean and reliable electricity in remote areas
- » Improved living conditions for communities through solar-powered water supply
- » Contribution to inclusive growth and poverty reduction in Nepal

PROJECT BACKGROUND

Alternative Energy Promotion Centre (AEPC) serves as the focal government agency for Renewable Energy Technologies (RETs) and Energy Efficiency (EE) in Nepal, actively working to enhance living standards and alleviate poverty by promoting and developing RETs. Through initiatives that align with sustainable development goals and aim to reduce carbon emissions, AEPC facilitates access to clean energy in Nepal. This commitment to progress is evident in the collaboration with the German Development Cooperation through the KFW development bank, securing an amount of 5.7 million Euros for the recently concluded "Promotion of Solar Energy" initiative in Nepal. This financial support was strategically allocated towards the implementation of Institutional Solar Photovoltaic Systems (ISPS) and RSDWP in rural areas of Nepal, with AEPC serving as the implementing agency, steering the project towards successful implementation.

The project's primary objective encompassed a dual mission: augmenting the supply of solar electricity while simultaneously mitigating CO<sub>2</sub> emissions. This ambitious undertaking involved providing subsidized financing for RSDWP for drinking water and Institutional Solar Photovoltaic Systems (ISPS) in remote regions of Nepal. The project's far-reaching impact has aimed at contributing significantly to inclusive growth, poverty reduction, and the overall enhancement of living conditions across diverse communities in Nepal.

Integral to the success of the project was the pivotal role played by Tractebel Engineering GmbH as the Implementation Consultant engaged by AEPC and KFW. Their involvement spanned the initial "Design Phase" from January 2017 to July 2019, during which collaborative efforts with AEPC had defined meticulous roadmaps and key documents that laid the groundwork for the project implementation. The subsequent Implementation Phase officially commenced on 27/01/2020, marking a significant step forward.

A comprehensive array of project activities was covered by the financial contribution which included investment subsidies for 90 RSDWP for drinking water, 1,383 Institutional Solar Photovoltaic Systems (ISPS), subsidies for 6 larger-scale pilot/demonstration RSDWP and ISPS, and robust capacity-building measures for involved stakeholders such as project staff, solar companies, and beneficiaries.

The project's overarching aspiration extends beyond immediate objectives, aiming to set industry benchmarks for technical standards, procurement models, and sustainability aspects. As the project reaches its successful conclusion, a celebratory milestone has been achieved with the triumphant installation and commissioning of all planned units. This remarkable feat not only signifies the fulfilment of project goals but also leaves a lasting and indelible imprint on Nepal's renewable energy landscape. The achievement underscores the transformative power embedded in collaborative efforts and sustainable initiatives, demonstrating how strategic cooperation can lead to substantial positive changes in the renewable energy sector, ultimately contributing to a more sustainable and resilient future for Nepal.

PROGRESS OVERVIEW

Institutional Solar PV System (ISPS)

We can now come to the health station at night if there's an emergency because we have electricity. I'm really happy that the birth center has bright lights now, instead of using torch lights like before.

Ganga Ale, 45

In Chakune Rural Municipality Ward -2, a remote village nestled in Surkhet District, a modest health station has undergone a truly remarkable transformation, courtesy of the invaluable benefits brought forth by solar power. Previously, the challenges of delivering babies after sunset were daunting, primarily due to inadequate lighting resources. However, the implementation of solar-powered lights has ushered in a new era, ensuring that mothers now experience safer and brighter deliveries, thereby significantly enhancing the overall well-being of both mothers and their newborns.

The positive impact of the solar energy system extends beyond the realm of maternity care. The health station has gained the capacity to operate an electric sterilizing machine, a capability that was once unattainable in the absence of a reliable power supply. This is essential in maintaining hygienic conditions, thus ensuring the safety and well-being of both patients and healthcare providers alike.

Furthermore, the influence of solar power has extended working hours for the health station well into the night. Additionally, it has facilitated community connectivity by enabling the health station to charge phones and utilize a computer for communication with larger hospitals. In this challenging, remote locale where securing an ambulance proves to be a formidable task, the ability to communicate with other hospitals serves as a lifeline, guaranteeing timely assistance for those who are sick or injured. In essence, this solar power initiative assumes the role of a superhero for the health station, not only improving life within the community but also emerging as a beacon of hope, particularly for mothers and families in need.

It's worth noting that this installation is just one among the 1383 similar installations spread across Nepal, reflecting the impactful role of the Alternative Energy Promotion Centre (AEPC) in illuminating lives and enhancing livelihood in rural areas.

INSTITUTIONAL SOLAR PHOTOVOLTAIC SYSTEM

Institutional Solar Photovoltaic System (ISPS) stands as a transformative solution, providing self-sufficient photovoltaic capabilities that operate independently of the conventional electric utility grid. Specifically engineered and sized to cater to designated DC/AC electrical loads, the ISPS serves as a resilient utility power alternative. Its primary applications are in off-grid locations, where traditional access to the electricity grid is non-existent. Comprised of essential components like PV Modules, an Energy storage battery system, and an inverter, this system is meticulously designed to empower public institutions in rural areas, thereby enhancing service delivery in critical sectors such as health, education, and administration.

Alternative Energy Promotion Center (AEPC) is at the forefront of championing the adoption of clean energy in government institutions. Thus the focus of this endeavour extends to schools, health posts, and rural municipalities, with the German Development Cooperation, through KFW development bank (KFW), committing 5.7 million euros for ISPS and PVPS projects. The overarching objective of the KFW Project was to execute 1,383 ISPS installations over a two-year period. The implementation process was outlined in five principal steps: Project Identification, Technical Design and Price Survey, Procurement, Installation, Testing and Commissioning, and Operation & Maintenance (O&M) alongside Performance monitoring.

The system follows a standardized modular approach, ranging from 1 kWp to 2 kWp, allocated based on the type of institution. Basic school-level education institutions and municipal ward office units are provided with 1 kWp, while health institutions, secondary and higher secondary schools, along with Rural Municipal Offices, receive 2 kWp ISPS systems. The allocation of capacity was determined through technical design and load information collected during the preparatory phase of the project, ensuring a harmonized distribution aligned with the specific needs of each institution.

AEPC's proactive call for applications from eligible institutions, including schools, health posts/hospitals, and rural municipalities, yielded a substantial response, with 1,822 applications received. Out of this pool, 1,383 installations were successfully executed with a 40% contribution. The distribution of installed systems is systematically allocated, with 666 in basic schools, 216 in secondary schools, 273 in health posts/hospitals, and 228 in rural municipalities, municipalities, and ward offices. This meticulous and standardized approach underscores AEPC's unwavering commitment to expanding access to clean energy and enhancing the operational efficiency of crucial public institutions in off-grid regions.

PROGRESS OVERVIEW

Rural Solar Drinking Water Project (RSDWP)

Before this project, we had to wake up as early as 4 am and walk uphill and downhill for more than an hour to fetch a single bucket of water. Life was very difficult for us then. But, now we have plenty of spare time for other productive activities.

Kamala Mukhiya, 48

After navigating a challenging six-hour off-road drive from Damak in Jhapa, one arrives at the small town of Rabi Bazar. From there, a more difficult one-hour journey leads to the secluded village of Sunar Tole in Miklajung Ward no. 2. Comprising approximately 28 households, this village has grappled with water-related issues for generations.

In the past, acquiring water for the villagers was an ordeal, women had to endure early morning chores of fetching for drinking water, starting as early as 4 o'clock in the morning. The scarcity of water had far-reaching consequences, contributing to the village's overall underdevelopment.

In December 2021, with support from KFW and local municipality, AEPC successfully implemented a solar drinking water project in this village at a total cost of Rs. 2.5 million. This transformative initiative has significantly reshaped the socio-economic fabric of the village, liberating women from their early morning struggles. The time once consumed by water collection is now redirected towards income-generating activities. Diseases stemming from polluted water have noticeably dwindled with the introduction of clean water distribution. The positive impact extends to education, as children no longer spend their mornings fetching water, enabling them to dedicate that time to homework. The village's sole school also benefits from a stable supply of pure drinking water.

To ensure the sustainable maintenance of the water supply, each household contributes a monthly fee of 50 rupees. In essence, this project has not only quenched the literal thirst of the local residents but also satisfied their hunger for a modern and improved way of life.

RURAL SOLAR DRINKING WATER PROJECT

AEPC, the vanguard of Nepal's renewable energy frontier, envisions a future where renewable energy becomes a mainstream resource, enriching lives through increased access, knowledge, and adaptability. Positioned to be a regional and international beacon for promoting the large-scale use of sustainable renewable energy, AEPC is committed to becoming a national focal point for effective resource mobilization, particularly in the realm of Renewable Energy Technology (RET).

In a dynamic partnership with KFW, AEPC is at the forefront of driving Rural Community-Based Solar Drinking Water Pumping Projects (RSDWPs) across the rural expanse of Nepal. These projects are strategically designed to tackle critical issues such as year-round water scarcity, the arduous task of water collection, and the direct repercussions of impure water on public health and education. The comprehensive RSDWP project cycle comprises stages like demand creation, pre-feasibility and detailed feasibility studies, technical review committee approval, tendering, civil work construction, electromechanical installation, and rigorous testing and commissioning.

User committees, operating under AEPC's adept technical guidance, assume the responsibility of executing civil construction work, closely supervised by AEPC consultant field staff. AEPC, in collaboration with KFW, generously provides a substantial 60% subsidy of the total project cost, capped at NRS 15 lakhs. An additional allocation of NRS 4000 is provided to DAG groups. Under the latest subsidy policy, the subsidy covers ninety percent of the total project cost, with the remaining funding shouldered by the relevant Municipality/Rural Municipality and the user community.

The solar lift drinking water project concept revolves around harnessing the potent energy of the sun to power water systems in off-grid areas. In Nepal, where many rural regions grapple with unreliable access to clean water and electricity, these solar-powered water projects emerge as a beacon of sustainable hope. Beyond addressing immediate water needs, these initiatives play a pivotal role in contributing to the holistic development of communities.

AEPC, unwavering in its commitment to sustainability, community participation, and local capacity building, has successfully implemented 90 projects with the unwavering support of KFW. Additionally, four large scale RSDWP projects, with no subsidy ceiling, have received over 70% subsidy from AEPC/KFW, marking a significant stride towards advancing renewable energy initiatives and fostering sustainable water supply solutions in off-grid areas. The narrative of AEPC's journey echoes a profound dedication to creating a future where clean energy is not just a luxury but an indispensable resource transforming lives across rural Nepal.

PROGRESS OVERVIEW

Large Scale Institutional Photovoltaic System

LARGE SCALE ISPS

The Large Scale Institutional Photovoltaic System (ISPS) represents a significant stride in scaling up of ISPS systems, extending beyond the regular 1 kWp and 2 kWp ISPS being promoted by AEPC. This innovative system features a larger solar array coupled with substantial storage capacity, designed to power appliances with higher energy requirement. Implemented specifically in public institutions delivering health services to rural citizens, this renewable energy system marks a transformative approach.

The primary goal of the Large Scale ISPS is to ensure a reliable electricity supply in these institutions, ultimately enhancing service delivery. Simultaneously, it aims to reduce reliance on fossil fuels for energy, envisioning a shift towards more resilient service delivery institutions. The quality of power supply in remote areas poses significant challenges, impeding the efficient functioning of institutions in rural and semi-rural regions. Moreover, these geographically isolated semi-urban government institutions face heightened pressure during natural disasters, exacerbated by limited resources and facilities.

Hospitals, in particular, play a pivotal role in delivering regular services and engaging in relief, recovery, and emergency-related activities. Given their critical functions, ensuring prompt energy supply becomes imperative, especially in situations where dependence on a single energy source may prove insufficient for efficient service delivery. Disruptions in energy supply not only impact the operational capabilities of these institutions but also contribute to the suffering of beneficiaries. The introduction of large-scale PV systems becomes instrumental in supplementing energy needs, ensuring a consistent and reliable energy source in critical institutions.

The significance of these large-scale PV systems lies in their capacity to maintain energy security in institutions crucial for public welfare. By mitigating the challenges posed by unreliable power supply in remote areas and offering a resilient energy alternative, these systems contribute substantially to the overall improvement of service delivery in public health facilities. The Large Scale ISPS not only addresses current energy deficiencies but also lays the groundwork for a sustainable and resilient energy future for vital public institutions, marking a pivotal step towards enhancing the well-being of rural communities.

PROGRESS OVERVIEW

Large Scale RSDWP

LARGE SCALE RSDWP

AEPC has strategically prioritized large -scale rural community-based Solar Drinking Water Pumping (Large-Scale RSDWP) Projects, in addition to installations of 90 smaller individual projects. With support from KFW, AEPC has successfully implemented 4 such projects, addressing the evolving needs of user committees and local governments.

Each project is meticulously tailored to address specific considerations related to water supply systems, including flow rate, distance, elevation, pressure requirements, pipeline characteristics, demand variability, system redundancy, and future expansion. However, AEPC has identified a critical challenge: a funding gap hindering the timely project implementation. In response, AEPC is exploring innovative solutions to bridge this financial gap and ensure the prompt delivery of water to communities.

The need for larger-scale pumping in water supply systems arises from factors like population growth, urbanization, varying distances to water sources, elevation changes, and the demand for pressurized distribution networks. AEPC, in collaboration with KFW, has initiated Large Scale RSDWP projects in rural areas as a pilot initiative, with notable projects in Ramechhap, Udayapur, Sankhuwasava, and Lalitpur.

These large-scale projects set themselves apart by the absence of a subsidy ceiling, allowing AEPC/KFW to subsidize more than 70% of the total project cost. This strategic approach reflects AEPC's proactive stance in overcoming financial constraints to deliver sustainable water supply solutions to rural communities.

By testing and implementing larger-scale solutions, AEPC not only addresses immediate water needs but also lays the groundwork for scalable and replicable models adaptable to diverse geographies and communities. As AEPC refines its strategies, the legacy of these Large Scale RSDWP projects serves as a testament to its dedication to providing reliable, sustainable, and inclusive water supply systems to rural communities. The positive impact extends across the landscapes of Ramechhap, Udayapur, Sankhuwasava, and Lalitpur, creating a lasting change.

CAPACITY BUILDING

In the context of the concluded solar energy project in Nepal, the Capacity Building component played a pivotal role in fortifying the knowledge base of stakeholders for sustained impact. Tailored training modules were a cornerstone, addressing the specific needs of beneficiaries' institutions for Institutional Solar Photovoltaic Systems (ISPS), User Committees for Photovoltaic Pumping Systems (PVPS), AEPC Engineers/Consultants, and installer companies.

Training Modules for Stakeholders: Beneficiaries' institutions for ISPS and User Committees for PVPS received targeted training to address their unique requirements. AEPC Engineers and Consultants underwent orientation sessions, acquainting them with the project's implementation model and adopted technical standards. Installer companies were trained on the procurement process and operational modalities, ensuring a unified understanding across all involved parties.

On-site Beneficiary Training: On-site training for beneficiaries covered the proper operation and management of PVPS and ISPS. Encompassing testing, commissioning, installation, and maintenance, this comprehensive approach instilled the skills necessary for independent operation. The aim was to empower beneficiaries to manage the solar systems effectively, fostering ownership and sustainability.

Operation Manuals for Sustainable Operation: Operation manuals, provided in the local language, ensured safe and sustainable system operation. Complementary to this effort, installation companies committed to additional training during the installation and commissioning process. This collaborative approach reinforced a holistic understanding of system operation and maintenance.

Monitoring Staff Training: Training of monitoring staff was crucial for effective system handling. Users at 46 solar pumping sites underwent training to ensure proficient system operation. This proactive approach mitigated operational challenges and contributed to the long-term sustainability of the solar infrastructure.

Collaboration with Development Agencies: Throughout project implementation, collaboration with development agencies like Renewable World, ICIMOD, Nepal Red-Cross, GIZ RERA, and municipalities was central. Engagements underscored the collaborative spirit, fostering synergy to achieve common goals. This model ensured a comprehensive and integrated approach to project implementation.

Setting Standards for Future Projects: The project not only achieved its immediate objectives but also set standards for technical benchmarking, procurement models, and sustainability. These standards provided a foundation for future projects undertaken by AEPC, ensuring a legacy of best practices in the realm of renewable energy initiatives.

In essence, the Capacity Building component was integral to the solar energy project's success, having empowered stakeholders, fostered collaboration, and established benchmarks for a sustainable energy landscape in Nepal.

Tailored training modules met specific needs, operation manuals ensured safety, and collaboration with agencies fostered an integrated approach. The project established lasting standards for future renewable energy initiatives.

LESSONS LEARNED AND WAY FORWARD

Nepal stands on the cusp of a transformative shift towards sustainable and clean energy solutions, as the Alternative Energy Promotion Centre (AEPC) spearheads initiatives in collaboration with the German Development Cooperation through KfW Development Bank. This collaborative effort lays a promising foundation for Nepal's energy transformation, presenting a unique array of opportunities and pathways as the nation charts its course towards a greener future.

Expansion of Reach: An overarching opportunity lies in extending the reach of renewable energy technologies to remote and marginalized areas. While the project concentrates on rural regions, there is untapped potential in further reaching off-grid communities. Broadening the geographical coverage could significantly enhance energy access, fostering inclusive growth for a larger population.

Technological Advancements: The evolution of technology presents a crucial avenue for progress. Investing in research and development, coupled with the adoption of innovative technologies, can enhance the efficiency and cost-effectiveness of solar energy solutions. By staying at the forefront of renewable energy innovation, Nepal ensures the maximal impact of each project.

Public-Private Partnerships: Creating an environment conducive to public-private partnerships is paramount for unlocking additional resources and expertise. Collaborating with private entities, local businesses, and international organizations injects fresh perspectives, investments, and technical know-how. Establishing a collaborative framework can pave the way for sustainable, scalable, and financially viable renewable energy projects.

Community Engagement and Capacity Building: Empowering local communities is pivotal for the long-term success of renewable energy initiatives. Robust community engagement programs and comprehensive capacity-building measures not only enhance understanding and ownership but also instill a sense of responsibility and pride within the communities. This approach ensures the effective operation of installed systems.

Policy Support and Regulatory Framework: A supportive policy environment is foundational for attracting investments and ensuring project sustainability. Ongoing dialogue between government agencies, regulatory bodies, and stakeholders can lead to the development of policies incentivizing renewable energy adoption. Clear regulatory frameworks provide a stable foundation for investors and developers, fostering a conducive ecosystem for sector growth.

Monitoring and Evaluation: Establishing robust monitoring and evaluation mechanisms is critical for assessing project impact. Regular evaluations provide valuable insights, enabling stakeholders to make informed decisions for future initiatives. Continuous learning and improvement based on real-world data contribute to the resilience and adaptability of the renewable energy sector.

In conclusion, Nepal's journey towards a sustainable energy future is laden with opportunities that, if strategically harnessed, can propel the nation into a new era of clean and accessible energy. Embracing technological advancements, fostering collaborations, empowering communities, and ensuring a supportive policy environment are key elements that will pave the way for a brighter, greener future. As the initiatives led by AEPC, German Development Cooperation, and KfW unfold, these opportunities serve as guiding beacons, illuminating the path towards a more sustainable and resilient energy landscape in Nepal.
